DR. CAPRICE WILLIAMS

VIRTUAL ACADEMIC AND COLLEGE READINESS COACH

My name is Carprice Williams, and I reside in Pennsylvania. I was educated through Lower Merion School District for grades K-12. Post-graduation from Lower Merion High School I attended a dual program between Villanova University, and Rosemont College where I obtained my Bachelors in Elementary Education, with a minor in Philosophy. From there I attended Drexel University where I obtained my master's in special education with a minor in Autism Spectrum Disorder, and my Doctoral Degree in Educational Leadership. I began working in Lower Merion after graduating from Rosemont College in 2012, while obtaining my master's degree. During my observation in the inner city, I found that my educational background and practices would have a much stronger impact on our inner-city youth. I resigned from my position in Lower Merion in 2016 and have been teaching in the Philadelphia School District ever since. Educating the inner-city youth has been a passion of mine, and it is being fulfilled in the Philadelphia School District. My favorite part of teaching the inner-city youth is seeing students tap into their full potential and excel in ways they didn't think were possible. I look forward to working with BFCA to assist the athletes in tapping into their full potential by mastering their academic goals.
